Cultural Rights

Active citizenship and the full recognition of cultural rights

Human rights pertain to the freedom and dignity of every human being, and are the basis and guarantee of the coherence and legitimacy of policy-making. Cultural rights refer to the rights of all individuals to freedom of speech, access to heritage, values, and identities, and active participation in cultural life. They are the foundation and guarantee of the coherence and legitimacy of policies. Cultural rights are an integral element of human rights and guarantee access to the knowledge necessary to exercise other rights, freedoms, and responsibilities.

Cultural rights are incompatible with restrictive, one-dimensional accounts of culture or identity because such narratives may be simplifying, reductive, populist, inconsistent with historical analyses, or restrictive of freedoms. Fixed identity has ceased to be a predetermining factor in community life, but the construction of identity has become a key element of all shared projects. Identity has gone from being a starting point to a negotiable destination.

Thus, cultural rights guarantee the ability of everyone to identify with one or several cultural communities, and to adapt this choice throughout his or her life. The exercise of human rights (including, but not limited to, freedoms of speech, association, and participation in civic life) is also essential for the development of a sustainable city.

Local policies should help citizens to exercise their rights to determine freely their identity, develop and exercise their creative abilities, recognize and accept foreign cultural expressions, and to take part in collective decision-making on all facets of community life. Local policies should recognize citizens as the main actors in local cultural life.

All public policies should be constructed by balancing, in a reasonable and logical way, the recognition of citizens' rights, institutional responsibilities, and the provisions of public services in the spirit of co-responsibility. Local governments should aim to define basic cultural services as basic rights that are afforded to all citizens, especially the most vulnerable groups and individuals, with the purpose of guaranteeing the development of their cultural capacities (rights, freedoms, and responsibilities).

- a. Local cultural policies are explicitly based on cultural rights.
- b. The local government has adopted a guideline text on cultural rights, freedoms, and cultural responsibilities.
- c. The local government adopts measures to facilitate citizen participation, either individually or as representatives of civil society groups, in setting priorities, decision-making, and in the evaluation of cultural policies.
- d. There are minimum service standards to ensure basic cultural services (for example, a minimum number of libraries/books per inhabitant).
- e. Detailed analyses of existing obstacles to citizens' access and participation in cultural life are undertaken.
- f. There are policies and programs aimed at citizens' broader and more active involvement in cultural practices and cultural creation.
- g. Cultural policies allow people to have access to, and transmit their own, cultural expressions, paying special attention to the most vulnerable groups and individuals.
- h. Increasing the opportunities for women to participate in cultural life is one of the objectives of cultural policies, and measures are taken to eliminate gender discrimination.
- i. Local civil society organizations working in human rights explicitly include cultural rights among their priorities.
- j. There are policies and programs to increase the number of active members of civil society organizations devoted to culture.

Culture and Environment

Cultural factors as accelerators of environmental responsibility

Recognizing the importance of culture in sustainable development means exploring the connections between culture and the environment. Culture influences our understanding of the environment and our relationship with it on a deep level. Concern for the welfare of future generations is already explicitly environmental, it should also be cultural.

People modify the ecosystems around them through cultural practices, values, and visions of the world. Human activities depend on and use "natural" spaces and biological resources that could otherwise disappear, such as agricultural heritage. Spaces and resources are bearers of culture partly as reminders of history, practical knowledge, and identity (e.g. food heritage), contribute aesthetic value (e.g. urban or rural landscapes), and condition the capacity for resilience. The knowledge people have of their surrounding ecosystems is of immense value. For instance, their practices have shaped urban and rural landscapes. This traditional knowledge should be recognized and used to better understand how cultures and ecosystems interact, and enter into dialogue with academic knowledge, particularly in the context of regional development projects that may impact the ecosystem. These forms of knowledge must be developed and shared in order to promote ecological thinking and the values of sustainable development. Nature and culture have evolved alongside one another and form a constantly evolving balance. Cultural diversity and biological diversity are therefore closely related.

Local governments play an essential role in ensuring that the considerations given to climate change, as well as promoting individuals' knowledge and capacities in dealing with the global challenge. Furthermore, local governments can promote access to the resources necessary to develop healthy, organic farms of food production. Another important area of concern is the environmental impact of infrastructure and cultural activities and ensure responsibility for this concern must be accepted, shared and accounted for. Cultural actors also contribute to raise awareness of different environmental concerns and the promotion of more sustainable uses of natural resources.

Actions

- a. Cultural factors, including the knowledge, traditions and practices of all people and communities, are integrated into local environmental sustainability strategies.
- b. Local cultural policies explicitly recognize the connections between culture and environmental sustainability (e.g. concerns about climate change, resilience, risk-prevention, the sustainable use of resources, and awareness raising about the richness and fragility of ecosystems).
- c. There is a working group or task force to link the work of local government departments of culture and environment.
- d. History and culture are included in guidelines on the promotion of the production and consumption of local products.
- e. Gastronomy, based on local produce, is recognized as a constituent element of local culture.
- f. The local government takes steps to facilitate and promote citizen initiatives for the sustainable use of public spaces, especially those linked to new gardening practices, and other examples of socio-ecological innovation.
- g. The local government establishes programs to preserve and spread traditional knowledge and practices that contribute to the sustainable use of natural resources.
- h. The local government recognizes the cultural importance of natural spaces with specific programs.
- i. Cultural organizations that receive public support evaluate their environmental impact and carry out ecological awareness-raising activities.
- j. There are platforms that link public and private civil society organizations that work in the areas of culture and the environment.

Culture and Environment

Culture, Equality and Social Inclusion

Culture contributes to new social bonds

Cultural and creative processes have a strong impact on people's wellbeing, health, and the well-being. They make it possible for individuals and communities to explore their histories and sense of identity, promote the development of new meanings in their lives, and grant them greater freedom. Cultural processes are essential in preventing exclusion and "leaving no one behind".

Active participation in cultural life is one of the key aspects in social inclusion. It provides the motivation and possibility of increased civic participation, links cultural visibility to awareness, fosters mutual recognition and cooperation between different generations and cultures, boosts employment, and improves a city or region's security and image. Culture is an important means for establishing new social groups and for developing new collective meanings. It can also contribute to conflict resolution, the strengthening of the social fabric, and greater resilience in groups and communities.

Cultural factors can promote or obstruct access to, and participation in, public services such as health, education, social inclusion, and employment. Public service policy makers and staff must actively seek to identify and tackle discrimination of all kinds in the provision of, and access to, public services, such as discrimination on the grounds of gender or ethnicity. Anti-discrimination policies and programs must seek links between cultural issues and all other areas of political action. These projects usually require long-term dedication and open, participatory methodologies.

Although the goal is to increase opportunities for everyone to participate, and to provide common spaces that are recognized by all, attention must be paid to individual freedom of choice (including the right not to participate in cultural activities). This freedom is a new and necessary right of citizens, complementary to their right to be able to...

- a. Local social policies in the areas of health, employment, welfare and social inclusion explicitly include culture as a dimension for combating all types of discrimination.
- b. There should be a regular analysis of the factors that determine the cultural vulnerability of certain individuals or groups, within the framework of processes that directly involve those groups and individuals.
- c. The relationship between personal welfare, health, and active cultural practices is analyzed regularly.
- d. There is capacity-building program for social service professionals and organizations that improves their ability to identify and tackle cultural factors that prevent people from accessing public services.
- e. The local government uses its cultural budget and public resources to actively promote the participation of women in cultural activities and organizations, particularly at the most high-profile and senior levels, and also to value, promote, and increase the visibility and status of cultural activities that are already carried out predominantly by women.
- f. Cultural institutions receiving public support carry out programmes that include disadvantaged groups and conduct them in neighborhoods with high levels of poverty and exclusion.
- g. Steps have been taken to ensure that cultural facilities and spaces are accessible to all, including people with disabilities.
- h. Local conflict resolution strategies take into account, and recognize the potential of, culture.
- i. There are programs to promote inter-generational cooperation.
- j. There are cultural innovation programs for young people that promote social inclusion and knowledge of cultural codes, digital environments, and gender equality.
- k. There is a local platform or network of associations, cooperatives, and third sector organizations that carry out activities on the relationship between culture, equality, and social inclusion.
- l. Local civil society organisations carry out awareness-raising campaigns, such as the promotion of cultural diversity, intercultural dialogue, and anti-racism, with the support of public institutions and cultural organizations.

Leading Cities
THE PROGRAMME

BARCELONA LEADING CITY - CULTURE 21

In the period 2017-2019, a specific project on the relationship between culture and tourism in the city of Barcelona (Catalonia, Spain), was initiated by the Institute of Culture of the City of Barcelona (ICCB) in collaboration with the Secretariat of the Committee on Culture of UCLG. In this context, a primary report was prepared, with the aim of studying the impact of tourism on the cultural system of the city and its different agents, with the purpose of identifying the components of the current debate in this field, analyzing the challenges to be faced and determining the lines of action and proposals to be followed. This report is available online in English, Catalan and in Spanish.

The structure of the report is based on the commitments and actions of Culture 21: Actions which have a clear relationship between culture and tourism (section 1), the presentation of data and an institutional context on the role of culture in the city's tourism policies (section 2), the analysis of the key challenges identified (section 3) and the formulation of possible lines of work and proposals for policy action in this area (section 4). The contents are based on the analysis of Culture 21: Actions and other bibliographical sources related to the cultural dimension of tourism, mainly in the context of Barcelona.

BELO HORIZONTE LEADING CITY - CULTURE 21

The City of Belo Horizonte (Minas Gerais, Brazil) has been very active in the Committee on Culture of UCLG. As a pioneer Pilot City in 2011, Belo Horizonte contributed to inform the elaboration of the Culture 21 Actions practical document, as well as the design of what was going to become the current Pilot City programme, 'Culture in Sustainable Cities. Learning with Culture 21 Actions'.

Belo Horizonte was also the first city to wear into the International Award 'UCLG - Mexico City - Culture 21' in 2011, which gave the city even more momentum for further collaboration with the Committee on Culture of UCLG. Following this, the City of Belo Horizonte organized an International Conference in 2014 on Culture and Culture in April 2019.

BILBAO LEADING CITY - CULTURE 21

In the framework of the participation to the Leading City programme of the Agenda 21 for Culture, the City of Bilbao (Basque Country, Spain) elaborated a good practice called 'The Performing city - Performing arts policies in Bilbao', which describes and comments thirty years of building a strategy for the city and performing arts.

Prior to this activity, and as a Leading City, Bilbao had also hosted the first UCLG Culture Summit in March 2016, which gathered during 2 days more than 200 participants from all constituent cities and local or regional governments, experts in the field of culture and cultural rights, civil society, academics and other interested key actors to discuss the place of culture and local cultural policies in sustainable development, at the local level, but also in the global agenda, being also the occasion for the authors to adapt the essential and practical UCLG Culture 21 Actions.

JEJU LEADING CITY - CULTURE 21

Because of its strong commitment to UCLG activities, being the president of UCLG section for Asia-Pacific (UCLG-ASPAC), and given its demonstrated solid background in cultural policies for people-centred sustainable development, the Jeju Special Self-Governing Province (Republic of Korea) became a Leading City of the Agenda 21 for Culture in 2014. Before, Jeju had been committed to the development of the Culture 21 Actions guide as one of the 2 pioneer cities and local governments which helped the making of the fundamental document.

As a Leading Province, Jeju carried out in 2016 a self-assessment on local cultural policies within its territory, and worked together with the expert Catalonia Culture a report which included the results of the evaluation based on the 4 commitments and 181 actions of Culture 21 Actions, which they had helped framing a few years before. The full report, as well as the 'Index of Jeju' are available online.

As a Leading Province of the Agenda 21 for Culture, Jeju also hosted and organized the 2nd UCLG Culture Summit in May 2017 together with UCLG, UCLG Committee on Culture and UCLG-ASPAC, which gathered almost 400 people and became the most relevant international event on culture, cultural policies and sustainable development for cities and local governments. The event was recognized by the World Urban Campaign as an Urban Thinker Campus.

MALMÖ LEADING CITY - CULTURE 21

The extensive background of the City of Malmö (Sweden) regarding matters related to cultural policy development, people-centred policies and sustainable local development made it a Leading City of the Agenda 21 for Culture. In 2014, Malmö received an Action Plan associated with the Cultural Strategy of the City for 2014-2020. It had been promoting a Seminar on culture in a sustainable urban, as well as a Seminar on 'Local implementation of the UCLG Sustainable Goals'.

The City has participated in several events organized by the Committee on Culture of UCLG, such as the 2nd UCLG Culture Summit, and the annual Meeting of Pilot Cities in the framework of the annual conference of Culture Action Europe. Beyond the obvious, this contributing to the global discussion on the integration of cultural aspects into sustainable development programmes.

BOGOTÁ LEADING CITY - CULTURE 21

In the course of 2017, the city of Bogotá (Colombia) shared with the Committee on Culture of UCLG the materials, knowledge and contents which permitted to elaborate a new good practice entitled 'Building a more active culture'. The good practice, which comprises three other good practice documents in the case of Bogotá, describes the city strategy to design and implement a management model for public institutions able to guarantee a programme of activities for cultural events that are oriented to the community actions of each specific territory.

Prior to this activity, the City of Bogotá had hosted in November 2014 the World Summit of Local and Regional Leaders, and 5th World Congress of UCLG, entitled 'Local voices for a better World'. In this context, the Committee on Culture had organized sessions addressing cultural aspects and dimensions of development, among which, one counted with the participation of the Secretary for Culture of the City, Mr. Mateo Claudio López.

BUENOS AIRES LEADING CITY - CULTURE 21

The City of Buenos Aires (Argentina) has always been very actively committed to the Agenda 21 for Culture, being one of its main authors, and assuming from 2008 to 2016 the role of vice-president.

Since 2016, the city is the co-president of UCLG Committee on Culture. During the years 2016 and 2017, it was very actively involved in the activities of the Committee, as well as in the design of the work plans for the same period, including annual meetings of the Committee and representing its interests in various international events, conferences and seminars. It was for example the case for the Informal Meeting of Habitat III in New York in 2016, where Luciano Basso, then extraordinary for culture of Buenos Aires, gave a speech both in the name of his City and of the Committee.

Proving the high commitment, interest and leadership of the City of Buenos in the global reflection on the place of culture in sustainable development, the Organization of three International conferences on 'Cities, Culture and Future', respectively in 2017, 2018 and 2019, which provided time and space to discuss the development of the UCLG Culture 21 Actions before its official adoption in Bilbao (March 2019). Moreover, Buenos Aires was chosen as the host city of the 2nd UCLG Culture Summit, to take place in 2021.

A global campaign to embed cultural solutions into climate policy

Add Your Voice

Global Call to Put Cultural Heritage, Arts and Creative Sectors at the Heart of Climate Action

The process to organise this Call to Action campaign was launched on 28 September 2023 during the European Cultural Heritage Summit held in Venice, Italy at the European Heritage Hub Forum "Reimagining the Anthropocene: Putting Culture and Heritage at the Heart of Climate"

A bold but necessary path towards mobilising creative solutions for tackling the climate crisis.

We, the undersigned, ask the national governments who are parties to the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) and its Paris Agreement to adopt a 'Joint Work on Culture and Climate Action' decision (JWD) at the COP.

This decision would reflect a commitment from the UNFCCC to begin a consultative process to understand the full contribution of culture - including cultural heritage, arts and the creative sectors - to climate action. The process would examine what culture-led climate responses are already happening, where and by whom; share recommendations for scaling out culture-based solutions; and help ensure that culture is fully integrated into the future work of the Convention.

Culture has unparalleled capacity to enable change.

The world's diverse cultures touch everyone, everywhere; encompassing the full range of voices, perspectives and tools to communicate urgency, mobilise action, and champion sustainable and justice-led ways of living. Through cultural participation, safeguarding, dialogue, experiences, narratives, and stories; and through creative images, events and offerings, culture inspires action, especially when fortified by respect for cultural rights.

Harnessing the power of diverse cultural values and ways of knowing, education and storytelling, art and craft, tangible and intangible heritage, and design and creativity can in turn guide and scale that action to create the systems change needed to tackle the twin climate and biodiversity crises.

Tangible and intangible heritage as well as traditional knowledge enhance resilience and offer time-tested, low-carbon, circular and regenerative technologies and solutions across sectors including the built and natural environment, agriculture, energy, and care for habitats and communities.

Anchored in shared human values of solidarity, care and respect, the collective effort of artists, creative activists, designers, culture and heritage institutions and civil society bringing together both professionals and volunteers, as well as scholars and holders of ancestral wisdom, enlightened policy makers, and communities and audiences,

CULTURE IN THE SDGs

THE GUIDE 'CULTURE IN THE SDGs'

CULTURE IN THE SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS: A GUIDE FOR LOCAL ACTION

GOAL 01

END POVERTY IN ALL ITS FORMS EVERYWHERE

This goal calls for an end to poverty in all its manifestations by 2030. It also aims to ensure social protection for the poor and vulnerable, increase access to basic services and support people harmed by climate-related extreme events and other economic, social and environmental shocks and disasters.

»» How is culture relevant?

Cultural services are basic services and equal access to them should be guaranteed for all men and women, including the poor and the vulnerable.

Cultural expressions, services, goods and heritage sites can contribute to inclusive and sustainable economic development.

»» What can cities do?

Ensure that minimum service standards for basic cultural services exist (for example, a minimum number of libraries or books per inhabitant, and the adoption of programmes fostering decentralisation of cultural services), so that everyone has access to culture.

Integrate cultural aspects, and the preservation of cultural resources and capacities, in local economic and resilience strategies, which should also engage local communities.

»» How cities make this effective - some examples

In Pekalongan, which recognizes itself as the 'City of Batik', local strategies giving priority to this traditional textile sector have contributed to generating employment. Batik is the main economic sector in the city and 60% of the employees in the sector are women.

In Porto Alegre, the local government has adopted policies and programmes to decentralise opportunities to access culture, making citizens' cultural rights effective and strengthening collaboration with NGOs and community groups.

In Ouagadougou, the Reemdoogo Music Garden, a cultural infrastructure that provides training, performance and recording facilities, has broadened opportunities for young people and contributed to the emergence of several small businesses.

The cultural policies of Lille-Métropole have contributed to increasing access to culture for everyone, through the enhancement of cultural infrastructure at neighbourhood level, the development of cultural education opportunities and the promotion of specific programmes for disadvantaged groups.

GOAL 02

END HUNGER, ACHIEVE FOOD SECURITY AND IMPROVED NUTRITION AND PROMOTE SUSTAINABLE AGRICULTURE

This goal aims to end hunger and all forms of malnutrition by 2030. It also commits to universal access to safe, nutritious and sufficient food at all times of the year. This will require sustainable food production systems and resilient agricultural practices, equal access to land, technology and markets, and international cooperation on investments in infrastructure and technology to boost agricultural productivity.

Target 2.5 refers to the need to maintain the genetic diversity of seeds, cultivated plants and farmed and domesticated animals and their related wild species, including through the utilization of traditional knowledge associated with genetic resources.

»» How is culture relevant?

Traditional knowledge related to the preservation of existing genetic resources, including the genetic diversity of seeds, should be recognized and maintained, and the fair sharing of the relevant benefits should be promoted.

»» What can cities do?

Integrate cultural factors, including the knowledge, traditions and practices of all people and communities, into local strategies on environmental sustainability.

Establish programmes to preserve and spread traditional knowledge and practices that contribute to the sustainable use of natural resources.

»» How cities make this effective - some examples

In Seferihisar, the Seed Swap Festival has enabled local producers to maintain traditional, low-cost agricultural practices and raised awareness of the need to preserve sustainable food production and consumption.

GOAL 04

ENSURE INCLUSIVE AND EQUITABLE QUALITY EDUCATION AND PROMOTE LIFELONG LEARNING OPPORTUNITIES FOR ALL

This Goal aims to ensure that all girls and boys have access to quality early childhood development and can complete free, equitable and quality primary and secondary education. It also aims to ensure that equal access for all women and men is available to tertiary education, and that the number of youth and adults who have relevant skills for employment increases. Other aspects addressed include the elimination of gender disparities in education and an increase in the achievement of literacy and numeracy among all youth and a substantial proportion of adults.

Target 4.7 aims to ensure that all learners acquire the knowledge and skills needed to promote sustainable development, including, among others, through education for sustainable development and sustainable lifestyles, human rights, gender equality, promotion of a culture of peace and non-violence, global citizenship and appreciation of cultural diversity and of culture's contribution to sustainable development.

»» How is culture relevant?

Educational programmes at all levels need to integrate contents related to cultural diversity, arts education, languages, and the role of cultural aspects in sustainable development.

A cultural approach, including recognition of local languages and locally-relevant abilities, and the involvement of cultural stakeholders, needs to prevail in the design of curricula at all levels – this is in line with human rights, and can contribute to educational objectives, including students' motivation and community connections.

»» What can cities do?

Adopt a local strategy linking educational policy and cultural policy.

Work to ensure that the curricula in primary and secondary education include the acquisition of cultural skills and knowledge, intercultural dialogue, diversity, tangible and intangible heritage, and cultural rights.

Provide educational activities for formal and informal environments within cultural facilities (e.g. cultural centres, museums, libraries, theatres, etc.), sites (heritage buildings, archaeological sites, etc.) and programmes (festivals, cultural initiatives, etc.).

Foster the involvement of artists and cultural professionals in education, training and other learning contexts, in order to foster access to and participation in cultural life for citizens of all ages.

Recognise the important role of libraries in fostering inclusive and equitable education and lifelong learning, through their support of literacy programmes, provision of safe spaces for learning, etc.

»» How cities make this effective - some examples

GOAL 08

PROMOTE SUSTAINED, INCLUSIVE AND SUSTAINABLE ECONOMIC GROWTH, FULL AND PRODUCTIVE EMPLOYMENT AND DECENT WORK FOR ALL

This Goal involves the achievement of sustained per capita economic growth, with higher levels of economic productivity and development-oriented policies that support decent job creation and entrepreneurship. Other issues addressed include the achievement of full and productive employment and decent job for all women and men, including for young people and persons with disabilities, equal pay for work of equal value, the reduction of the proportion of youth who are not in employment, education or training, the eradication of forced labour and the protection of labour rights.

Target 8.3 refers to the promotion of development-oriented policies that support productive activities, decent job creation, entrepreneurship, creativity and innovation, and encourage the formalisation and growth of micro-, small- and medium-sized enterprises, including through access to financial services.

Meanwhile, Target 8.9 addresses the need to devise and implement policies to promote sustainable tourism that creates jobs and promotes local culture and products.

»» How is culture relevant?

The cultural and creative sectors have the potential to be areas for inclusive, sustainable and fair employment, insofar as the appropriate labour conditions, in accordance with international human rights, are guaranteed.

Cultural aspects can be integrated in tourism strategies, while ensuring that this does not imply decontextualisation of cultural identities, activities and assets and that relevant benefits are reinvested in cultural activities.

»» What can cities do?

Explore the potential of the cultural and creative sectors to contribute to inclusive, sustainable and fair employment.

Ensure that the local tourism model is sustainable, balanced across the city or region, connected to the local communities and interactive with the cultural ecosystems.

Include cultural knowledge, skills and jobs in employability programmes.

Support the international mobility of artists and culture professionals, thus enhancing employment opportunities for them.

Regularly analyse the contributions made by the public, civil and private cultural sectors to the local economy, including their direct and indirect impact on the creation of employment, as well as how young people, men and women, and disadvantaged sectors are represented therein.

Take measures to ensure adequate working and remuneration conditions for cultural professionals.

GOAL 11

MAKE CITIES AND HUMAN SETTLEMENTS INCLUSIVE, SAFE, RESILIENT AND SUSTAINABLE

This is the main Goal dedicated to sustainable development in cities. The Goal aims to ensure access to adequate, safe and affordable housing, basic services and transport systems for all. It also addresses the need to enhance inclusive and sustainable urbanization, improve urban resilience in the context of disasters and reduce the environmental impact of cities.

Target 11.4 states the aim to strengthen efforts to protect and safeguard the world's cultural and natural heritage.

Target 11.7 refers to the provision of universal access to safe, inclusive and accessible, green and public spaces, in particular for women and children, older persons and persons with disabilities.

» How is culture relevant?

Many relevant sites and elements of tangible and intangible cultural heritage are found in cities and play a role in sustainable local development – indeed, cultural aspects are fundamental to foster local sustainable development.

Green and public spaces can allow for the development of cultural activities and need to be accessible to everyone.

Traditional construction techniques and related knowledge and materials can inform approaches to the renovation of existing buildings and the design of new ones.

Cultural factors inform behaviour in cities, in areas including transport and mobility, uses of the environment, etc.

» What can cities do?

Adopt policies regarding the protection of cultural heritage in all its dimensions, both tangible and intangible.

Promote an understanding that culture plays a role in sustainable local development, through appropriate capacity-building, policy design, implementation and evaluation, etc.

Allocate appropriate human, technical and financial resources to local cultural policies, in line with the understanding that culture is fundamental to achieve local sustainable development.

Keep an updated inventory of local natural and cultural heritage, both tangible and intangible, and establish mechanisms for its preservation and conservation according to international standards.

Foster the use of a reference guide on 'cultural impact assessment' within urban planning policies.

Adopt measures to promote the role of culture in the renovation of historic centres and in neighbourhood, district and regional development plans.

Recognise public spaces, including streets, squares and other places, as key resources for cultural interaction and participation.

Ensure that capacity-building programmes addressing sustainable urban planning, transport and mobility, and other related areas integrate a cultural dimension, e.g. training activities devised by local government associations and development agencies.

Be aware of the risk that cultural facilities and actors reinforce gentrification process, and take measures to control this.

» How cities make this effective – some examples

The International Council on Monuments and Sites \(ICOMOS\) has developed a range of tools and recommendations to contribute to the implementation of Target 11.4 on strengthening efforts to protect and safeguard the world's cultural and natural heritage.

GOAL 16

PROMOTE PEACEFUL AND INCLUSIVE SOCIETIES FOR SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT, PROVIDE ACCESS TO JUSTICE FOR ALL AND BUILD EFFECTIVE, ACCOUNTABLE AND INCLUSIVE INSTITUTIONS AT ALL LEVELS

This Goal focuses on the reduction of all forms of violence and related death rates, the ending of abuse, exploitation, trafficking and all forms of violence against children, the promotion of the rule of law of access to justice for all, and the reduction of illicit financial and arms flows. It also aims to substantially reduce corruption, to develop effective, accountable and transparent institutions, and strengthen the participation of developing countries in global governance.

Target 16.4 calls for the return of stolen assets.

Target 16.7 promotes responsive, inclusive, participatory and representative decision-making at all levels.

Target 16.10 demands the enhancement of public access to information and the protection of fundamental freedoms. All of these targets have specific implications in the field of culture, as explained below.

»» How is culture relevant?

Stolen cultural assets should be returned to the relevant communities.

Citizens should be able to participate in the design, implementation and evaluation of cultural policies and programmes.

Cultural facilities, including libraries and knowledge centres, foster access to information.

Strategies aimed at the alleviation of violence and the promotion of peace should integrate a cultural component.

»» What can cities do?

Place cultural rights at the centre of local policies, informing the design, implementation and evaluation of policies, programmes, facilities, etc.

Take into account and recognise the potential of culture in local conflict prevention and resolution strategies.

Ensure access to free and plural information, including through plural local media.

Commit to protecting and promoting freedom of artistic expression, both at local and at international level, e.g. by providing shelter to artists and culture professionals under threat.

Establish public cultural policy forums (e.g. local councils on culture), involving public, private, civil society bodies and citizens, with the aim of discussing, setting-priorities for and monitoring local cultural policy.

Guarantee that cultural institutions that receive public support are transparent, accountable and evaluate the public services that they provide.

Recognise the important role of civil society organisations and networks as part of a plural governance of culture, and guarantee the existence of an enabling environment for its development.

National associations of municipalities and individual cities should also ask their respective national governments to create a "cultural policy" chapter, and include a "cultural impact assessment" process, in national programmes to implement the SDGs.

»» How cities make this effective - some examples

In Concepción, an extensive consultation process including debates and individual interviews, involving over 3000 people, led to the adoption of the city's Cultural Strategic Plan, in the context of the city's aim of establishing a new, joint vision for long-term sustainable development. Participatory spaces have remained thereafter, so as to oversee and contribute to the implementation of activities.

A major railway disaster in 2013 led to the need to 'rebuild' and 'reinvent' Lake Mégantic. Citizens and local institutions took this as an opportunity to establish a new, horizontal and participatory model of governance, with a strong engagement of citizens and associations, and which has recognised culture as a fundamental aspect of quality of life.

In Busan, the TOTATOGA Creative Village Project is a community initiative which aims to make the city a place where culture is part of daily life and contributes to prosperity, with a strong component of citizen engagement and public-private collaboration. It has transformed traditional models of policymaking and has been seen as a model to follow by other cities.

In Timbuktu, a range of measures aimed at reinvigorating the socio-economic and urban fabric of the city following the occupation of 2012-13 involved the strengthening of cultural heritage, the defence of citizens' freedom to maintain their cultural practices, and the promotion of culture as a strategy for resilience and sustainable cohabitation.

Facing an increase in violence, Tamaulipas promoted a network of community culture groups involving in particular young people, training them to work as volunteers and contribute to the coexistence of their communities.

Involving a strong participatory component, the Cultural Sustainability Framework of Galway, strongly inspired by Culture 21 Actions, has enabled local stakeholders to map cultural resources and explore how they relate to other areas of local governance.

The first Cultural Plan of Washington DC has been developed through a strong consultation process, is inspired by Culture 21 Actions and places emphasis on all residents' ability to take active part in cultural life.

Cultural policies in Izmir have a strong component of collaboration and plural governance of culture, notably through the work of the Izmir Mediterranean Academy and the Izmir Culture Platform Initiative, which brings together cultural actors.

The International Federation of Libraries Associations and Institutions (IFLA) has developed a range of tools and recommendations to help libraries and library authorities implement the 2030 Agenda, with particular emphasis on Target 16.10 (public access to information) but also addressing other Goals and Targets.

The International Cities of Refuge Network (ICORN) gathers cities and regions offering shelter to writers and artists at risks, advancing freedom of expression, defending democratic values and promoting international solidarity.

DECLARATION ON THE INCLUSION OF CULTURE IN THE SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS

We, the undersigned organisations active in the field of culture and development:

Understanding the concept of development to comprise

- a. human development: the pursuit of the full potential of citizens with physical, emotional, spiritual, intellectual, psychological and cultural dimensions
- b. social development: the building and sustaining of structures, policies and strategies that facilitate and enhance the pursuit of human development, social cohesion and participatory governance
- c. economic development: the creation of wealth and generation of economic resources that can help drive human and social development.

Convinced of the unsustainability of

- a. human development without fundamental rights and freedoms and respect for cultural diversity
- b. social development without social justice
- c. economic development that exacerbates inequality and depletes natural resources

Observing that the cultural dimensions of development are too often ignored to the detriment of the achievement of sustainable development – human, social and economic

Recognizing that a. culture – understood as an ensemble of values, traditions, tangible and intangible heritage, religious beliefs, worldviews and the expressions of culture in ways of living – can facilitate or impede the achievement of development goals

b. development – premised on values, worldviews, ideological beliefs, vision etc. – is itself an act of culture that impacts, benevolently or adversely, on the culture of its intended beneficiaries

c. conflicts rooted in economic and power disparities may be fuelled by the exploitation of cultural differences, with such conflicts impacting negatively on development through the destruction of infrastructure, social cohesion and human life and the flight of people with expertise

Believing that

a. strong cultural organizations and participation can play a key role in preventing conflict by promoting dialogue and a diversity of cultural expressions

b. development means participation in the cultural life of the community and access to the arts as fundamental human rights ascribed in the Universal Declaration on Human Rights

c. as the fourth dimension of sustainable development, culture is as essential as the economic, social and environmental dimensions, and therefore, the safeguarding of heritage, diversity, creativity and the transmission of knowledge are integral to sustainable development

d. human development thrives on creativity, creative expression, the arts and cultural heritage as means of emotional and psychological catharsis, intellectual stimulation and the exploration, celebration and transformation of the human condition within given circumstances

e. social development requires creativity, a diversity of creative expressions, the arts and cultural

RECOGNIZING THE ROLE OF CULTURE TO STRENGTHEN THE UN POST-2015 DEVELOPMENT AGENDA

We represent the global constituency on culture that is actively engaged in the pursuit of sustainable development at local, national, regional and global levels. We represent governmental and non-governmental organizations. We are fully committed to a successful elaboration and implementation of the UN Post-2015 Development Agenda.

During the last decade the international community has collected substantial evidence on the role of culture in development. The conclusion is that, most often, development policies and projects which do not take into account the cultural dimension have failed. Culture effectively contributes to policies, strategies and programs targeting inclusive social and economic development, environmental sustainability, harmony, peace and security. Culture is both a driver and an enabler of sustainable development.

Committed to an effective Post-2015 Development Agenda, we have made regular inputs to the goal development processes.¹ We have followed closely the work of the Open Working Group on Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), including in particular its Outcome Document, published on 19 July 2014,² and the Synthesis Report of the UN Secretary-General released on 4 December 2014.³

* We are pleased to see that some references to culture are included in the Outcome Document. However, as these references are scarce and fragmented, we remain concerned. The Outcome Document fails to embrace the full potential of culture, despite the many UN debates and resolutions, the evidence collected by universities and experts and the existence of a global constituency representing millions that strives to fulfil culture's role as driver and enabler of development.

* We are pleased to see that the Synthesis Report of the UN Secretary-General on the Post-2015 Agenda fully acknowledges our deepest convictions: “... we must mobilize the power of culture in the transformative change we seek. Our world is a remarkable mosaic of diverse cultures, informing our evolving understanding of sustainable development. We still have much to learn from cultures as we build the world we want. If we are to succeed, the new agenda cannot remain the exclusive domain of institutions and governments. It must be embraced by people. Culture, in different aspects, will thus be an important force in supporting the new agenda.”⁴

COMMUNIQUE: CULTURE IN THE SDG OUTCOME DOCUMENT: PROGRESS MADE, BUT IMPORTANT STEPS REMAIN AHEAD

The Special Summit on Sustainable Development to be held in New York on 25-27 September, within the 70th Regular Session of the United Nations General Assembly (UNGA 70), will adopt the Outcome Document Transforming Our World: the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. Comprising 17 Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and 169 targets, this document will guide sustainable development policies and strategies in the next 15 years.

Since 2013, the global campaign “The Future We Want Includes Culture”, led by several regional and global civil society organizations, has advocated for the inclusion of culture in the SDG Outcome Document. The campaign’s Declaration, which was translated into eight languages, was endorsed by over 500 organizations and thousands of citizens from 120 countries, proof of its universal appeal.

As global leaders prepare to adopt the SDG Outcome Document, members of the “The Future We Want Includes Culture” campaign present this communiqué in order to convey the following observations:

1. Achievements

The nature of the process leading to the adoption of Transforming Our World, with wide consultations involving regional, national and local organizations and civil society actors, should be welcomed. A global community has been able to discuss its vision for sustainable development in a broad forum of relevant stakeholders. Such participatory exercises should also be applied in the future, not least when preparing National Development Plans which will implement the 2030 Agenda on a national level.

When compared to the Millennium Development Goals, Transforming Our World represents a significant step forward with regard to the acknowledgement of the role of culture in development processes. The following elements are noteworthy:

➤ The Preamble refers to the need to respect cultural diversity (para. 6) and pledges member states to foster inter-cultural understanding, tolerance and mutual respect, while acknowledging the natural and cultural diversity of the world and recognizing that all cultures and civilizations can contribute to, and are crucial enablers of, sustainable development (para. 36). Other aspects highlighted by the Preamble, such as the vision of enabling a world of universal literacy (para. 7), are also essential to foster access to culture and promote cultural understanding.

➤ TARGET 2.5 touches on the need to ensure access to and fair and equitable sharing of benefits arising from the utilization of genetic resources and associated traditional knowledge, in order to achieve the goal of ending hunger and achieve food security etc.

➤ TARGET 4.7 stresses the need for education to promote a culture of peace and non-violence, global citizenship and appreciation of cultural diversity and of culture’s contribution to sustainable development.

CULTURE2030GOAL - OUR STRATEGY

1. WHO WE ARE

The Culture 2030 Goal (#culture2030goal) Campaign is formed by several global cultural networks* united to advocate for the role of culture in sustainable development. It is the continuation of the #culture2015goal Campaign, created in 2013 to call for culture to be included in the United Nations 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development (and the SDGs) that was adopted in September 2015.

The Campaign is focused on the UN System. This includes central organs like the UN General Assembly and Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC), as well as agencies with relevant thematic mandates, i.e. UNESCO, UNDP or UN-Habitat.

2. CULTURE IN THE UN DECADE OF ACTION, COVID19 AND THE NEW STRATEGY

Over the past 18 months, the Campaign has gained important momentum. A study on the place of culture in the implementation of the 2030 Agenda, published in September 2019, highlighted good practices around the world. However, it also underlined that much needs to be done to realise the potential of culture as a pillar of sustainable development. In the context of the UN's Decade of Action, the study proved that culture represents a crucial development accelerator.

In April 2020, the members of the #culture2030goal Campaign released the #CultureCOVID19 Statement, entitled 'Ensuring culture fulfils its potential in responding to the COVID-19 pandemic'. This not only highlighted the need to support culture during the pandemic, but also on how culture could both promote wellbeing in the immediate term, and a stronger, fairer recovery in the longer term. This received noteworthy attention from various organisations, including UNESCO and the WHO, culminating in the excellent result of an endorsement by the President of the UN General Assembly.

Building on these successes, we have initiated the development of a strategic framework for the culture2030goal Campaign, within the context of the UN Decade of Action. In keeping with strategic planning methodology, we define below:

- I Our Vision: The recognition of culture as the fourth pillar of sustainable development;
- I Our Mission: To mainstream culture across the global development agenda;
- I Our Values/Beliefs: are rooted in the #culture2015goal Manifesto of 2014 and the #CultureCOVID19 Statement of 2020;

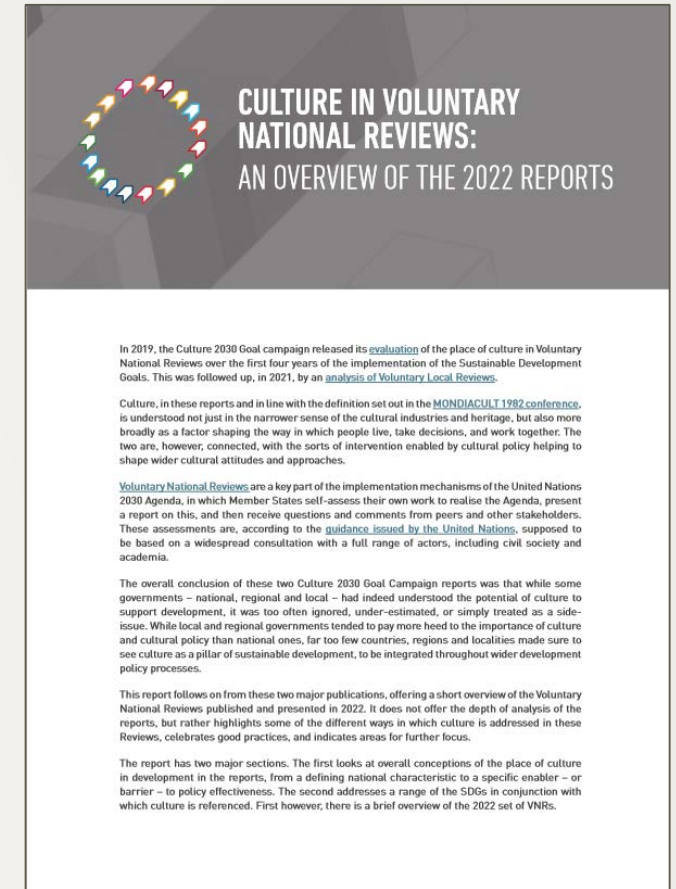

I Our Goals include:

- I A stronger place for culture throughout the implementation of the current global development agenda (the UN 2030 Agenda);
- I The adoption of culture as a distinct goal in the post-2030 development agenda;
- I The adoption of a global agenda for culture.

I Our Activities are foreseen to include;

- I Engaging at UN High-Level Political Fora and other relevant global intergovernmental events, notably through organising high-level panels;
- I Supporting advocacy at the national and regional levels in favour of incorporating culture into development planning, through the sharing of tools and information;
- I Developing and implementing methodologies for monitoring and engaging Voluntary National and Local Reviews, including through shadow reporting, in order to maximise recognition of culture;
- I Influencing and shaping the discourse through the issuing of statements and other reports, including formulating what a culture goal could look like (with mention of cultural rights, tangible and intangible heritage, access, diversity, creativity, etc.);
- I Building connections with diverse other stakeholders and bringing campaigns together.

CULTURE2030GOAL - Analysing VNRs (2016-2019, 2022, 2023 and 2024) and VLRs (2021)

CULTURE IN THE 2024 VOLUNTARY NATIONAL REVIEWS: A CULTURE2030GOAL CAMPAIGN REPORT

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Culture2030Goal Campaign's report on culture in the 2024 Voluntary National Reviews (VNRs) provides an overview of how far – and how – culture is being integrated into national efforts to deliver on the United Nations 2030 Agenda.

Steps to integrate culture in this way come despite the lack of a dedicated culture goal in the Agenda when it was agreed in 2015, a move which the Campaign has argued has led to the under-mobilisation of culture as a driver of development. The hypothesis of the campaign is that any government looking to take a truly comprehensive approach to achieving the Agenda – and its 17 Sustainable Development Goals – will need to address culture. Analysing VNRs offers a good way of testing this hypothesis, given that these offer a snapshot of how governments are approaching sustainable development.

Based on an exploration of references to culture in the 33 published reviews (including that of South Africa, which subsequently chose not to present, but not including Mexico, Samoa, South Sudan and Vanuatu, who had not yet published at time of writing), it looks at how VNRs address culture in three ways:

- According to the different dimensions of culture addressed
- According to the clusters of different SDGs linked to culture in reviews
- According to the targets set out in the Culture2030Goal Campaign's zero draft of a Culture Goal

The report finds that looking across the VNRs as a whole, the full range of dimensions of culture, clusters of SDGs, and targets in the Culture Goal zero draft are reflected.

There is nonetheless strong variation in the degree of attention paid to culture, with Austria, Brazil, Colombia, Ecuador, Oman and Palau standing out for the depth and breadth of their exploration of the role of culture in sustainable development. Already from this range, it is possible to see that countries at quite different levels of GDP and from very different parts of the world are seeing culture as a key topic.

In line with the Campaign's own work to call for a dedicated Culture Goal in any future development agendas – and for it to be treated as a goal already today – the analysis does seem to indicate that there is need for an extra impulsion to ensure that the good practice that already exists is spread more universally. It also offers helpful evidence for a future revision of the Culture Goal, both in terms of setting out the potential relevance of the targets in place, but also useful nuances to be taken into account in future.

THE CULTURE GOAL PROPOSAL (2022)

5 REASONS WHY WE NEED A DEDICATED CULTURE GOAL

- 1 TO ENSURE ADEQUATE FOCUS ON CULTURE AT THE HIGHEST LEVEL OF GOVERNMENT.
- 2 TO ENSURE THAT THE RANGE OF CONNECTIONS BETWEEN CULTURE AND OTHER POLICY AREAS ARE FULLY ACCOUNTED FOR.
- 3 TO ENSURE THAT THE CULTURE SECTOR ITSELF FEELS A SENSE OF ENGAGEMENT IN AND OWNERSHIP OF THE GOALS.
- 4 TO ENSURE THAT ALL OTHER GOALS ARE ACTIVATED, AND THAT THEIR ACHIEVEMENT IS STRENGTHENED, THROUGH THE MOBILIZING POWER OF CULTURE.
- 5 TO ENSURE THAT THE ACHIEVEMENT OF ALL GOALS CAN BE PROTECTED FROM SYSTEMIC AND BEHAVIOURAL BARRIERS THAT CAN BE ADDRESSED THROUGH A CULTURAL LENS.

THE PROPOSAL

INDICATIVE FRAMEWORK FOR DRAFTING A CULTURE GOAL

Consideration of drafting needs to take account of certain lessons – both positive and negative – from the SDGs in their current form. Clear ownership of targets and indicators is beneficial in terms of ensuring tangible commitment and follow-up, but may also risk isolating such targets and indicators from others with which they need to be closely connected. Framing differentiated ownership within a shared transversal agenda is thus an important bridge between drafting and advocacy. Another lesson – for example from targets SDG 16.6 and 16.7 – is that targets with vague or otherwise inadequate indicators tend to be neglected as institutional efforts focus on what can be effectively measured and reported against.

CULTURE GOAL

Ensure cultural sustainability for the wellbeing of all

POSSIBLE TARGETS

1. Realize cultural rights for all, by fostering inclusive access to and participation in cultural life, creativity and diversity of cultural expressions, in particular for women, children, older persons, persons with disabilities and vulnerable populations. [Ideally, indicators could report both on frameworks and outcomes, and be based on the works of the UN Special rapporteur on Cultural Rights and the UNESCO Thematic Indicators for Culture.]
2. Promote a culture of peace and non-violence, global citizenship and appreciation of cultural diversity. [Indicators could be developed by analogy with those for education, but focusing on the broader social and cultural context and providing a basis for reporting on national initiatives and their outcomes.]
3. Protect and safeguard all forms of heritage, harness them as a resource for sustainable development, through existing conventions and other policy frameworks, as well as such new mechanisms as may be appropriate. [With respect to existing conventions, indicators are already available through UNESCO. They could helpfully be recognized as post-2030 development indicators.]
4. Protect and promote the diversity of cultural expressions to strengthen the creativity and development capacity of individuals and communities, through existing conventions and such new mechanisms as may be appropriate. [Indicators using the UNESCO Thematic Indicators for Culture 2019 and the relevant conventions' own monitoring tools.]

5. In devising and implementing policies on cultural and creative industries, sustainable tourism and digital technologies, promote local culture and products, the economic and social rights of artists and cultural professionals and artistic freedom, and develop and implement appropriate monitoring tools. [Important here that indicators should not merely register initiatives – which may have little effect on the ground – but also assess outcomes, ideally framed in the terms already internationally recognized under the Convention on the Diversity of Cultural Expressions.]
6. Enhance legal conditions and practical opportunities for mobility of cultural professionals and cross-border creativity in the creation of cultural goods, services and practices through international multi-stakeholder collaboration. [Indicators should ideally report both on frameworks – including such issues as visa requirements etc. – and outcomes.]
7. Empower indigenous peoples to strengthen their own institutions, cultures and languages, and to pursue their development in keeping with their own needs and aspirations [Ideally, indicators could report both on frameworks and outcomes.]
8. Develop a cultural approach in environmental protection and sustainable urbanization, including land planning, landscape management, protection of biodiversity, agriculture and natural areas management, through heritage, local cultures and knowledge, creativity and arts. [Ideally, indicators could report both on frameworks and outcomes, and be based on the frames provided by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change – IPCC and the Intergovernmental Panel on Biodiversity and Ecosystem Services – IPBES.]
- a. Strengthen cultural institutions, including through international cooperation, to build capacity at all levels to realize cultural rights and sustain cultural pluralism. [Indicators should include reference to specific institutions/mechanisms as well as to funding and employment issues and to issues around freedom of expression as anchored in existing human rights instruments.]
- b. Ensure, through transversal, multi-stakeholder collaboration, that cultural considerations are taken into account in all international development goals, at the outset of and throughout all policy-making processes, through engaging cultural sector actors, whether or not associated with pre-existing cultural targets. [An important and challenging area, which requires creative and dynamic international leadership – perhaps under the aegis of UNESCO – and well-defined indicators that connect clearly with those already defined under targets relating e.g. to poverty eradication, elimination of hunger, gender equality, climate action, and peace, justice and inclusion.]

- (b) Ensure adequate investment in the protection and promotion of culture.
- (c) Engage constructively in bilateral negotiations on the return or restitution to countries of their cultural property of spiritual, historical and cultural value, and strengthen international cooperation on this issue.

We decide to:

(a) Ensure that culture as well as sport can contribute to more effective, inclusive, equitable and sustainable development, and integrate culture into economic, social and environmental development policies and strategies and ensure adequate public investment in the protection and promotion of culture;

(b) Encourage strengthened international cooperation on the return or restitution of cultural properties of spiritual, ancestral, historical and cultural value to countries of origin, including but not limited to objets d'art, monuments, museum pieces, manuscripts and documents, and strongly encourage relevant private entities to similarly engage, including through bilateral dialogue and with the assistance of multilateral mechanisms, as appropriate;

(c) Promote and support intercultural and interreligious dialogue to strengthen social cohesion and contribute to sustainable development.

CULTURE2030GOAL - From Summit to Substance (2024 to 2025)

This proposal is based on the side-event “No future without culture: Reflecting and Imagining on the Place of Culture in Delivering the Pact for the Future”, organised by the Culture2030Goal campaign on 20 September 2024 (see agenda and recording, here). The proposal is also coherent with our Zero draft of a future Culture Goal, released on 26 September 2022 on the eve of Mondiacult in Mexico City (see here).

The Culture2030Goal campaign undertakes to publish an in-depth proposal of a Culture Goal (in July 2025, to present it at Mondiacult 2025); it is also committed to the exploration of the feasibility of a Major Group within the UN system.

We promote culture as the fourth pillar of sustainable development, we connect culture, creativity and transformation, and we support the global advocacy for a Culture Goal ★ Culture is what makes us humans. Development is only sustainable if its cultural dimension is explicit: heritage in all forms, diversity, creativity, transmission of knowledge, and intercultural dialogue. The achievement of a large number of SDGs and their targets relies on being operational with their cultural dimension, and on involving cultural actors in the localisation process.

★ We are committed to further recognize and foster the crucial role culture plays in the wellbeing of our communities and sustainable development, and to support cultural rights and heritage now and towards the future.

CULTURE 2030 GOAL CAMPAIGN

Building upon the advocacy and initiatives of several cultural global networks during the process of creation and adoption of the 2030 Agenda and the SDGs, the Culture 2030 Goal Campaign was initiated in 2018, calling for a stronger place for culture throughout the implementation of the current UN 2030 Agenda, the adoption of an explicit Goal for Culture in the Post-2030 Development Agenda, and the adoption of an ambitious and comprehensive Global Agenda for Culture. It is led seven global actors, including the UCLG Culture Committee, Arterial Network, Culture Action Europe, International Council on Monuments and Sites (ICOMOS), International Federation of Coalitions for Cultural Diversity (IFCCD), International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions (IFLA), International Music Council (IMC). Since 2020, different publications have been released in the framework of the campaign, including reports analyzing the VNRs and VLRs as well as a concrete proposal on a stand-alone Culture Goal with 10 targets.

★ We call for the inclusion of a Culture Goal in the 2030 Agenda, to give full coherence to the place of culture in sustainability as well as in the ecological and social transitions we need.
